Q. Leaving aside for now the question of whether Scotland should become an independent country, some people have proposed that the Scottish Parliament and the Scottish Government should have more powers, and be responsible for all areas of policy except defence and foreign affairs. This is sometimes called 'Devo Max'. This would mean the Scottish Parliament would be responsible for all decisions about the level of tax and government spending in Scotland. -
 (b) And do you think public services in Scotland would improve, or get worse, or stay about the same?.
